

Simple gRPC Service

Both client and server are C# based.

Client's project type is "Console App (.NET Core)" whereas server's project type is "gRPC Service".

This is just a simple example service showing how both different types of projects communicate.

Client sends an integer that represents user id. Server receives that, based on which it selects a case and returns the strings. Client then displays that on its own console.